How We Tested Solar Lights
We tested a variety of solar lights, putting them through their paces in a range of urban, suburban and rural gardens across the country. They were subjected to changing weather and hours of daylight for over six months. They were then assessed according to the following criteria with equal marks attributed to each: 1. Set Up. Assessed the clarity of the light and how easy it was to install. 2. Brightness. Assessed the overall brightness of the light. 3. Runtime. Assessed the number of hours the light can run on a single charge. 4. Weather Resistance. Assessed how well the light can withstand different weather conditions. 5. Design. Assessed the aesthetic appeal of the light, including its shape, color, and any unique features. 6. Price. Assessed the cost of the light, including any shipping or handling fees. 7. Durability. Assessed the overall durability of the light, including its ability to withstand impact and harsh conditions. 8. Energy Efficiency. Assessed the energy efficiency of the light, including its power consumption and how much energy it uses to charge. 9. Maintenance. Assessed the ease of maintenance and any required cleaning or upkeep. 10. Safety. Assessed the safety of the light, including its compliance with relevant safety standards and any potential hazards.
